A Howard University Quarterly Review of Issues Incident to the Education of Black People

The Journal of Negro Education has been published continuously since its inception in 1932 and has been devoted to the illustration of Black scholarship. It appears quarterly (winter, spring, summer, and fall) and is published for the Howard University School of Education with assistance from a national editorial/advisory board. Usually, the summer issue is a special issue devoted to providing a comprehensive focus on a major subject or issue of timely concern. The Journal encompasses the area of professional education as well as social sciences, physical and natural sciences, the arts, and technology concerned with the successes, virtues, and problems of education of Black people in the U.S. and throughout the world. Moreover, The Journal serves as a vehicle for publishing significant research on the status of Black education.
